An Evening of Music.

Solon, July 16. (Special).—An evening of music was given here July 13 under the leadership of W. S. Wight of Bethel. The talent consisted of his chorus class of last winter. Mrs. Pearl Clayton Swain, reader; Miss Elva G. Whipple, contralto, and Genevieve McIntire, violinist, with Mrs. Leslie W. McIntire and Mrs. P. S. Longley, accompanists. The program was rendered in a very pleasing manner without exception. The chorus did excellent work and should receive great praise where so little is usually given. The following was the order:

Selection, Mrs. McIntire's Orchestra Chorus:
(a) Sailing on the Sea,
(b) May Morning.
Song, Miss Whipple
Patriotic Chorus, Class
Duet—Hope Beyond,
Messrs. Norton and Wight
Song—Out on the Deep, Mr. Adams
Quartet—Merrily Goes our Bark,
Miss Whipple, Mrs. Norton, Messrs. Norton and Wight.
Violin Solo, Genevieve McIntire
Bedon Love Song, Mr. Wight
Quartet—Italia,
Mrs. McIntire, Mrs. Buswell, Messrs. Norton and Wight.
Anthem—Wake the Song of Jubilee.
Reading, Mrs. Swain
Dutch Duet (by request),
Miss Christa Rowell and Mr. Wight
Double Quartet—Tripping Through the Rye,
Congregational Choir
Song, Dr. Greene
Chorus—Star Spangled Banner,
Song, Elmer Baker of Bingham
Chorus—Hail Smiling Morn.
Quartet—Stars of the Summer Night,
Mrs. McIntire, Mrs. Buswell, Messrs. Norton and Wight.

Although it was a warm night and the weather was a little threatening, a fair-sized audience listened to the above with the closest attention and earnest appreciation. Miss Whipple, Mrs. Swain, Mr. Wight and Dr. Greene, Miss McIntire and Mr. Baker all received encores to which they responded very pleasantly. Mr. Wight sang "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep," by special request, in a truly beautiful manner. All have been glad to have him in town for a short stay while he was "building musical fences" for a fall campaign of music, and attending to other matters.—Lewiston Journal.

Methodist Episcopal Notes.

Sunday, August 2, the pastor will preach a discourse known as the Pond Lily sermon, from the text, "And in the morning, then ye shall see the glory of the Lord; Ex. 16:7. The sermon will be illustrated by pond lilies.

A meeting at 10.30 a. m., or fifteen minutes before the Sunday morning preaching service, is now being held for the purpose of prayer for the work of the day and the interests of the church and the kingdom of Christ. Only the stewards and other officials of the society attend this service. It is very helpful to the pastor.

The society is pained to hear of the death of Mrs. John Howe of Swan's Hill, and extends sympathy to the bereaved. Prayer was made at her late home this morning by the pastor of the M. E. church, preceding regular funeral services at Bryant Pond in the afternoon, conducted by the pastor of her home church. The Lord help those who mourn in such an hour.

The Ladies' Aid of the M. E. church in this place will hold a sale and serve a supper on the lawn of Mrs. C. S. Littlehale on Broad street, Thursday evening. Supper will be served at six o'clock. The apron sale will be later in the evening. Ice cream can be obtained during the evening. There will be music and other interesting features. If the weather is not suitable for service out of doors, the supper and sale will be held at the rooms of the Woman's Relief Corps. All will be welcome. Proceeds of sale and supper for the parsonage repairs.

There will be a re-opening service at the church in Locke Mills on Sunday afternoon, August 2, with a sermon appropriate to the occasion at 2.30 o'clock. Special music will be rendered under the direction of Mrs. Stovell. In the evening the pastor will deliver an address on the subject, Young People's Societies and their Use. The church has been much beautified inside and presents a very pretty appearance. There is need of a new pulpit and we wish some one would be moved to add such a gift to the improvements already made.

SAUTELLE'S CIRCUS.

Despite the inauspicious weather, and the doubts of the children that a circus would really come to Bethel, Sig. Sautelle's grand show or rather combination of shows put in an appearance as advertised. Although many years since a circus has spread canvas in the limits of our little hamlet, our people have visited other towns and cities and seen grander, more elaborate shows than this even advertised to be, so it was a very critical gathering that thronged the principal streets Thursday forenoon to witness what they gladly admitted was a first class street parade. It was 11:30 when the parade came on Main St. There were three bands, open and closed cages of animals, men and women riders, horses and ponies in abundance. The riders were an exceptionally clean looking set of men and women, and the animals were a sleek and handsome lot and attracted much attention.

The tents were well filled both afternoon and evening. The menagerie comprised a milgau, a large short horned sort of deer, two hyenas, a Bengal tiger, a lion, lioness and two cubs, a huge elephant, baby elephant, camel, sloth, leopard, panther, puma, two cages of monkeys and other animals which attracted much attention.

All the time there was something in each of two rings, while between them were other features presented. There were several bare back riders who went through some seemingly impossible feats to the delight of all who witnessed them. An interesting feature was pony riding by trained dogs which was fine.

Professor Barnes with the trained puma or mountain lion, was an interesting feature. The animal performed many tricks, among them riding a horse. At times the nature of the animal showed itself and it snarled and struck at the stick which the professor held in his hand. This is said to be the only trained puma which is exhibited in this country to-day.

Later in the entertainment the professor made his appearance with ten trained dogs. Among them was the dancing dog, the bag punching dog, the waltzing dog, the cake-walking dog, and the high-jumping dog.

The La Tellis brothers, two perfectly developed acrobats, next made their appearance. At the same time in one of the other rings the Jeanettes brothers appeared. They were not of the same strength as the La Tellis, but their ability on the mat was apparent. While this was going on the revolving pedestal with its representations of Roman and Grecian statuary entertained the people. These representations were carried out by a lady and gentleman who were dressed in pure white suits so that they resembled marble statues when motionless. They represented the Dying Gladiator, a well known piece of statuary, combating gladiators, etc.

Then there were the Holmans on the horizontal bars and Addie Travers on the bounding rope. Mr. Travers has been in the business 43 years and is a veteran at this work. He has grown gray and bald in the business and is said to be quite stiff at the joints when walking, but when upon the rope he loses all that stiffness and becomes a regular Blondin.

The contortionists La Baron, Miss Prince and Charles Jackson did some excellent work in their line.

Charles Watson and Henry Smith the two rough riders performed excellent feats on horseback. Watson was a member of the rough riders and was with President Roosevelt at San Juan Hill.

The chief of the Mohawk Indians also performed some very daring feats on horseback and gave an exhibition of trick riding in time of warfare.

Frank Reed, grandson of Old Dan Rice the veteran bare back rider, was among the entertainers. Mr. Reed is a wonderful young man on horse back, and those who take an interest in his feats which were the newest and rarest, will welcome him again. He jumped to the ground turned two cart wheels on his hands, and then a somersault and landed on the horse's back, nearly half the distance around the ring from where he first left the horse. The crowd was loud in applause of Mr. Reed. The management of the show claim that he is the greatest horse back tumbler in the United States.

Blanche Hilliard, the only woman to ride four horses bareback, had just joined the company. Her act was fine.

The clowns, ten in number, were there, accompanied by their usual auxiliaries, the donkeys, and served to spice the performance with the run without which it would not be a circus.

An Italian band of sixteen pieces not only discoursed delightful music for the regular performances but gave a concert in front of the postoffice at 6 o'clock, which was highly appreciated by those fortunate enough to hear it.

The last thing on the program was the hippodrome races. The four-horse chariot race which was the last race of the lot was one of the hardest that has ever been seen in any circus. The horses seemed to care nothing for the sharp turns and dashed around at terrific speed.

A good clean show that our people will be glad to welcome again

THE LIGHT
THAT FAILED

By Rudyard Kipling

put one hand on her breast to keep it quiet. Dick was staring directly at her, and she realized for the first time that he was blind. Shutting her eyes in a railway carriage to open them when she pleased was child's play. This man was blind, though his eyes were wide open.

"Torp, is that you? They said you were coming." Dick looked puzzled and a little irritated at the silence.

"No; it's only me," was the answer, in a strained little whisper. Maisie could hardly move her lips.

"H'm!" said Dick composedly, without moving. "This is a new phenomenon. Darkness I'm getting used to, but I object to hearing voices."

Was he mad, then, as well as blind, that he talked to himself? Maisie's heart beat more wildly, and she breathed in gasps. Dick rose and began to feel his way across the room, touching each table and chair as he passed. Once he caught his foot on a rug and swore, dropping on his knees to feel what the obstruction might be.

Maisie remembered him walking in the park as though all the earth belonged to him, tramping up and down her studio two months ago and flying up the gangway of the channel steamer. The beating of her heart was making her sick, and Dick was coming nearer, guided by the sound of her breathing. She put out a hand mechanically to ward him off or to draw him to herself, she did not know which. It touched his chest, and he stepped back as though he had been shot.

"It's Maisie!" said he, with a dry sob. "What are you doing here?"

"I came—I came—to see you—please!" Dick's lips closed firmly.

"Won't you sit down, then? You see, I've had some bother with my eyes, and—"

"I know. I know. Why didn't you tell me?"

"I couldn't write."

"You might have told Mr. Torpenhow."

"What has he to do with my affairs?"

"He—he brought me from Vitry-sur-Marne. He thought I ought to see you."

"Why, what has happened? Can I do anything for you. No, I can't. I forgot."

"Oh, Dick, I'm so sorry! I've come to tell you, and—let me take you back to your chair."

"Don't! I'm not a child. You only do that out of pity. I never meant to tell you anything about it. I'm no good now. I'm down and done for. Let me alone!"

He groped back to his chair, his chest laboring as he sat down. Maisie was afraid no more.

"I shan't," she said, settling herself on the arm of the chair. "You belong now, Dickie, and I've come up all these stairs, and—here they are—Here the tears began, with unromantic sniveling and mopping of the cheeks. He was trembling under the touch of her hand on his shoulder, but his face was turned away from her. "Dick, you aren't going to be selfish now I've come back? I'm so sorry! Oh, I'm so sorry!"

"I knew that was all. Won't you leave me alone? I shall have to suffer for this afterward."

"You won't!" She bent down and whispered in his ear. When the fountains of the great deep are broken up, there follow rain and miracles. "Yes, I do," she said, flushing crimson. "My darling, I do. I don't care. You can sulk as much as you like and I won't be angry. I've been a villain—a wicked little villain. Shall I go down on my knees and tell you so? Don't be stupid, Dickie. It's no use pretending. You know you care for me."

"I do! God knows I do!"

"What nonsense, then, pretending to be selfish! The voice grew unsteady. "Do you remember the Dover boat? Take that, then, and be sensible. Oh, help me, Dick!" she whispered. "I can't make love all by myself!"

The unspoken argument clinched all, and Maisie was in Dick's arms crying as though her heart would burst.

"Eush, dear, hush! What's the use of worrying? It's all right now," said Dick, stroking the head on his shoulder.

"We did belong, Dick, didn't we? It was my fault—all my fault," Maisie whimpered, her face hidden.

"I like that fault. Be more fault-some."

"Course you did." She laughed through her tears. "I—I had to do all the—all the lovemaking. It was horrible!"

"It was only me, what did it matter? If it had been a strange man you might have objected. And then, again, you took me on my blind side."

"That's an ugly word, and you aren't going to use it any more."

"But it's true, dear. I'd give everything except you to see your face again. But I'm blind."

Maisie thought for a minute till love gave her pure reason. "That's nonsense too. Listen, stupid. You said ten years were nothing. And they weren't. We belonged just the same. Now do you remember out on the flats with the pistol when my hair got into your eyes?" Dick caught the click of hairpins, and Maisie's long locks fell about his face. "You couldn't see now if you tried ever so. Let's pretend it's only my wig in your eyes for just a little longer—for fifty or sixty years. Fifty's five times less important than ten. Can't you see that, darling?" She shook her head to increase both the darkness and the understanding.

"I see," said Dick very contentedly. "Oh, it's good to have you back again, Maisie!"

"It's gooder to be back, bad boy." And they argued that point gravely with interruptions, and they discussed ways and means also with interruptions, and they took no count of time till Maisie said, "I haven't any clothes. I haven't eaten anything for years. I haven't anywhere to live except in the little house, and the caretaker there will be out, and I must go and be a party."

"What's that dear?"

"There was a man once," said Maisie, a hairpin between her teeth, "who was always trying to drag me to a registrar's office to be married. He told me that one or other of the parties must always give a notice to the registrar. I shall buy a thick veil and be that party. Isn't it nice to know we've only ourselves to think of?"

"I remember that man," said Dick. "I feel that I ought to be that party."

"Never mind. Afterward you shall beat me. I think it would do me good. I want to be beaten. Oh, Dick, I've been such a bad, double bad villain. A villain with a Melancolia."

"By Jove! That reminds me of something I'd completely forgotten. I did a Melancolia before I went—"

"Ah, no; not that word!"

"Began to see, then. She's up in a corner somewhere, and I thought a good deal of her at one time. What do you think?"

The voice was the voice of the man who had told her the tale of his doings in the park, what time he looked to kick the world before him.

"Is it the veiled canvas on the easel?" asked Maisie.

"Yes. Well!"

She was looking at a formless, scarred blur of paint. Somebody had used the palette knife with deadly skill. It was a cruel, wicked, wrong, and she could not understand it. But for Dick's sake she must make no sign. Her eyes were very dim, and her voice choked with the hard held tears as she made answer, still gazing on the wreck:

"Oh, Dick, it is good!"

Dick heard the sob and took it for tribute. "I thought you'd like it," he said, smiling at her across the room. And she would have given the world to cry, but she came back to his arms instead to bid him goodbye for a little while.

"Dick," she said when the long farewell was ended, "do you imagine when a woman loves a man that she cares for his work? She loves him for himself—self—self. Now I must die, and please may I slug on the staircase going down?"

There was very little thought of song in Maisie's heart when she went out unless it were the old rhyme, "Lord ha' mercy on me, this is none of it!" She wanted to sit down and be quiet—very quiet—in her half dismantled house. Torpenhow did not appear, and the staircases were empty of life.

"That's nice of him," said Maisie, and fled in a cab to astonish the caretaker across the park.

"Hallo!" said Torpenhow, entering the studio after Dick had enjoyed two blissful hours of thought. "I'm back. Are you feeling any better?"

"Torp, I don't know what to say. Come here," Dick coughed huskily.

"What's the need for saying anything? Get up and tramp."

They walked up and down as of custom, Torpenhow's hand on Dick's shoulder.

"How in the world did you find it all out?" said Dick, beaming.

"You shouldn't go off your head if you want to keep secrets, Dickie. It was absolutely impertinent on my part, but if you'd seen me rocketing about on a half trained French troop horse under a blazing sun you'd have laughed. There's going to be a charity in my rooms tonight. Seven other devils!"

"I know—the row in the southern Sudan. I surprised their councils the other day, and it made me unhappy. Have you fixed your flint to go? Who do you work for?"

"Haven't signed any contracts yet. I wanted to see how your business would turn out."

"Would you have stayed with me then if things had gone wrong?"

"Don't ask me too much. I'm only a man."

"You've tried to be an angel very successfully."

"Oh, yes! Well, do you attend the function tonight? We shall be half screwed before the morning. All the men believe the war's a certainty."

"Of course I'll come. I haven't turned my back on the old life yet."

That night there was tumult on the stairs. The correspondents poured in from the theater, dinner and music hall to Torpenhow's room that they might discuss their plan of campaign in the event of the certainty of military operations being a certainty. Torpenhow, the Kenen and the Nilghal had bidden all the men they had worked with to the orgy, and Mr. Beeton, the housekeeper, declared that never in his checkered experience had he seen quite such a fancy lot of gentlemen. They waked the chambers with shoutings and song, and the elder men were quite as bad as the younger. For the chance of war were in front of them, and all knew what those meant.

When the clamor was at its height Dick entered with his great happiness upon his face. The room was heavy with tobacco smoke and the fume of strong drinks, and the men were settled in unpicturesque attitudes on chairs, sofa and table. There was a general shout.

"Poor, secondhand gladiators!" he said with pretended scorn. "You only exist to describe who will die on the sands out there. Half of you will be dead this time next year. The Sudan kills specials."

"Are, imperator, te morituri salutant!" said the Kenen. "Get into a chair, and don't moralize. The public wants us as much as we want you."

"By the way, what does the dear public say about me?"

"One paper said six weeks ago that it deeply regretted to hear you weren't quite well. The rest have forgotten by this time," said the Nilghal.

"Sweet creatures! They naturally would. Give me a drink." And by the instinct of association he began to hum the terrible "Battle Hymn of the Republic." Man after man caught it up—it was a tune they knew well—till the windows shook to the clang, the Nilghal's deep voice leading:

"Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord; He is tramping out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored; He hath loosed the fateful lightning of his terrible swift sword—His truth is marching on."

"How does the next verse go?" said the Kenen. And they swept off again, beating time on the table:

"He has sounded forth the trumpet that shall never call retreat; He is sifting out the hearts of men before his judgment seat; Oh, be swift, my soul, to meet him, be jubilant, my feet! Our God is marching on."

Then Cassavetti, very proud of his knowledge:

"In the beauty of the lilies"—

"Hold on!" said Torpenhow. "We've nothing to do with that. It belongs to another man."

"No," said Dick to himself under his breath, "the other man belongs."

THE END.

Solidity of the Globe.

So long ago as 1839 Professor Hopkins started the modern theory, that the globe is solid throughout, save possibly certain spaces. He drew his arguments from astronomical observations, whereby it is shown that the smallest thickness of crust to prevent deformation must be at least 1,000 miles and that the globe as a whole must be not less rigid than glass. Lord Kelvin, by independent study of vortex motions, confirmed this, but extends it to perfect solidity.

The second argument is drawn from the tides. The attractive force of the sun and moon is so great that, were the crust steel and 500 kilometers thick, it would yield very nearly as India rubber and rise and fall with a tide of its own, so that none would be noticed in the sea. Professor G. Darwin's researches confirm this.

The third argument is that water in many cases greatly lowers the melting point of rocks, and water or its constituents by capillarity go to great depths and may be entangled in the innermost parts, thus aiding, with pressure, the greater specific gravity of the interior.

He Left the Stage at Hero.

At an auction sale that lasted for the best part of a week the auctioneer's throat began to trouble him greatly, and to save himself as much as possible he had one of his employees read off the number and name of each article as it came up for sale. The assistant's pronunciation of such words as "marqueterie," "Francois," "Sevres," "Delacroix" and "Beauvais" was so weird that the audience "got on to him," and all those who were not too busily engaged in making bids were reading their catalogues to follow the assistant's blunders. He met his Waterloo when he started to read "Bronze and ormolu empire clock, set of three pieces, supported by Egyptian figures, chased."—And as he came to a full stop the catalogue readers burst into a roar of laughter that was inextinguishable to the rest of the audience. The word after "chiseled" which the assistant simply refused to have a try at was "hieroglyphics."—New York Press.

Peculiarities of the Carnation.

The peculiarities of the carnation are such that under cultivation it has been made to take almost any character as to color or form of flower desired by the careful cultivator. It has been very popular with one generation of men and equally unpopular with the next. When in favor, the flowers increased in size, and the varieties became numbered by the hundreds. At one time fringed petals were in great demand and were secured; at another the smooth edged petals only found acceptance.

Two hundred years ago the gardeners thought the flowers imperfect if the calyx did not burst, and refractory flowers were knifed into fashion's line. But during the last 150 years the burst calyx has been deemed a defect, yet all efforts to prevent it in large flowers have not been wholly successful.

Historic Bachelors.

Many eminent men whose names are household words and who have left their impress upon the world were bachelors. Beethoven, Schubert, Bellini, Clara and Donizetti, all great German musical composers, were bachelors. John G. Whittier, our American poet was a bachelor. Kant, the great philosopher; Erasmus, the scholar and philosopher; Leibnitz, the German mathematician; Humboldt, the philosopher; Galilei, who discovered the application of the pendulum and that the earth revolves; Hugen, the German astronomer who discovered Saturn's ring and one satellite; Leib, the chemist; Dr. Hahnemann, the originator of homeopathy; Dr. Franz Joseph Gall, the originator of phrenology, and Guericke, the inventor of the air pump, were all bachelors.

A feat of horsemanship.

For the sake of a wager a remarkable feat of horsemanship was some years ago accomplished by a sporting nobleman in a certain London mansion. He made a bet with a friend that he would ride his pony from the ground floor of the house to the top and down again. His steed required a good deal of persuasion to attempt the task, but it was finally performed, though the damage done to the stair carpets and other things amounted to almost $1,000, which had to be paid by the winner.

THE HOME.

A Song of Summer.

This about the summer time—
It's good to just be livin' with the glory in your soul!

The light is shinin' bright,
And the stars are out at night,
And the rivers are a-rippling through the valleys of delight!

This about the summer time—the green in all the trees;
The shadows of the branches, the
drowsy hum of bees;

The cool and dreamy dells
Where the cattle shake their bells,
And the quiet of the twilight when the day sighs sweet farewells!

Far sweeter is the summer time than winter with its glooms.

For not a vale or meadow but is beautiful with blooms!

The glory of the light
In the morning and the night,
And the singing of the mocking birds in valleys of delight.

—Frank L. Stanton.

New Type of Business Woman.

The woman of fine presence and all-around social cleverness has a two-to-one better chance in the business world just now than the trained specialist, in whatever department. Taciturn, pleasing women, no matter how slight their technical knowledge, are in demand and get the chance to extend their usefulness while the speedy stenographers, efficient bookkeepers and the like make barely living wages. Many women who had no idea of working have entered the lists at the solicitation of those who recognized their fitness.

In the beauty parlors frequented by wealthy people the young person who receives the patrons does so with an inimitable air of interest and affability. Her gown alone is worth going to see. The arrangement of her hair, even the fashion of her belt clasp, smacks of exclusiveness and inside knowledge as to modes. And when she beckons the attendant to whom the customer is to be consigned it is with quite the manner of performing a benevolent act.

She is only a paid servitor. The real mistress sheltered in her inside office is a plainly dressed, thoughtful looking woman, with perhaps neither the taste nor the inclination to get herself up in the gloriously impressive fashion. She had the ability to build up a properly exclusive clientele, however, and the sense to know that there should be an attractive seneschal to preside—a deputy mistress free from care, whose entire time could be devoted to looking agreeable.

In a sumptuous private sanitarium is another deputy mistress—a fine, dashing looking woman who knows nothing whatever of nursing but has a prettily sympathetic way about her that wins favor with both guests and patients. She is always exceptionally well dressed, a prepossessing recommendation for the establishment. Women of tactful manners are employed by several of the great specialists to interview people when the doctor is away.

It is the thing now in the exclusive dressmaking and outfitting establishments to have the patrons received as though they were guests. And a woman with good looks and social skill combined to come forward and make customers feel at home is a needed adjunct. She it is who shows them samples and takes them around the show cases, where costly gowns or walters are on exhibition. All this is done as though it mattered not a whit whether an order was secured or not. When it comes to costs and estimates another person is called in, and the woman who receives goes to welcome other guests. Social diplomacy never played so important a part in business as now.

Sometimes the woman who is exceptionally clever, well dressed and sophisticated is employed very pleasantly as out-door companion by wealthy people who want an instructed person's company, or by young women who want a comrade on excursions which they may not make alone. But the field in which the tactful woman who is self-dependent finds best remuneration is as the handler of "educational propositions," promoter of mining stocks, real estate investments, savings bank securities and like issues. The promoter for these is of a very different caliber from the women admirably employed to heat up par-

RECOMMENDS DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY.

In a recent issue of the New York Magazine of Sanitation and Hygiene, the recognized authority on all matters pertaining to health, James H. Montgomery, M. D., says editorially:

"After a careful investigation of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, a specific for kidney, liver and bladder troubles, rheumatism, dyspepsia and constipation with its attendant ills, we are free to confess that a more meritorious medicine has never come under the examination of the chemical and medical experts of the New York Magazine of Sanitation and Hygiene. In fact, after the most searching tests and rigid inquiry into the record of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, it becomes a duty to recommend its use in unequivocal terms to every reader of this journal whose complaint comes within the list of ailments which this remedy is advertised to cure. We have obtained such overwhelming proof of the efficacy of this specific—have so satisfactorily demonstrated its curative powers through personal experiments—that a care for the interest of our readers leads us to call attention to its great value."

chasers and demonstrate the efficacy of household and dry goods items.

Business men with ventures and interests to advance can detect the right qualifications for a successful promoter in a moment. Not long ago a young woman was tempted to answer a very cleverly worded advertisement, which stated that experience was not necessary, nor technical training, nor canvassing. Good pay was offered and short hours. On keeping the appointment made in response to her application, she found that not canvassing, but what practically amounted to the same thing was wanted, namely, interviewing strangers and arousing their interest in a business venture. She promptly refused the place to be met by genuine importuning that she should try the work.

"You are just the sort of a lady we want," the man said. "Your looks and manner would take you anywhere. And you'd be making big commissions besides the salary in less than a fortnight."

The young woman withdrew, nor did she ever answer the three letters she received asking her to consider the proposition. But the case illustrates how much women of good culture and address are being utilized in business.—New York Sun.

To Gain Happiness in Married Life.

Happiness in married life is to be gained, just as enduring happiness in any other place of existence on earth is to be found—by the use of the old fashioned virtues of unselfishness, consideration for others, politeness and kindness, all based on love and capped by common sense.

Like the old recipe for cooking the hare, which begins, "First catch your hare," a happy marriage for a woman begins with "First select your man." Not an ideal-made seraph, not an ossified brain, not a mere animal, but a man capable of loving and appreciating a woman's love.

Of course, he will be more or less selfish. This is the way parents usually rear their sons. It is your task to bear with this selfishness at first until you can tactfully teach him how beautiful is thoughtfulness for others, and in a very sweet but dignified way show him that you expect the same treatment you bestow.

In the meantime you must recollect that a husband can always at every approach, be the prince charming to anchor the enchanted princess with his first kiss, if he is skilled enough in love's arts and refined enough to wish to keep the interesting role.

And in all love's ways man is much given to following woman's lead.

If you have no independent income of your own, have an understanding in your honeymoon with regard to money matters. Ask for an allowance to be set apart for your use, in order that no humiliating and indelicate discussions need ever occur between you on this subject. Then study to be economical and thrifty—and wise in your use of allowance.

Love, sense and patience. Those are the three important elements necessary to happiness in marriage.—Ex.

"Look Pleasant."

At a recent meeting of an art club at which were twenty-five members, it was impossible to find one really happy-looking woman. The lines of anxiety, the puckered brows and drooping mouths, made one member feel that she would like suddenly to flash a mirror into each face and say:

"Can't you look a little more pleasant, even if you don't feel like it, just for the sake of those around you?"

Think of sitting opposite a woman twice—perhaps three times—a day, and seeing always a look of care and worry. One couldn't blame a man for getting discouraged. The same thing can be seen in cars, lectures and in fact everywhere, and even some young girls and children have the same disagreeable expression. If this care-worn look has become such a part of the present generation that we can not part with it, let us at least impress future generations with the fact that it is not only a thousand and pitiless to spoil their freshness with all those useless lines and frowns, but a real wrong besides. One expects to look older at forty than at twenty, yet need one look as though she alone had all the hard times?—Good Housekeeping.

Times Change.

One of the hardest lessons for a mother to learn, and she has many to learn in this age of changes and progress, is that the manners and habits, and even language, of the younger generation, are not those which she was taught were essential to a gentleman. In fact, she must realize, if she would retain her influence and authority with her older children, that if the essentials were preserved, if her daughters are truthful, reliable and good; the rest, however important it may seem to her, is, after all, immaterial. Conventionality must be regarded as a matter of fashion, and she must perforce leave such matters to the young people themselves, who are, after all, pretty sure not to offend public opinion, only the public opinion that they value (as it is only natural) is that voiced by their own contemporaries, while that of older people is necessarily somewhat old fashioned.—Ex.

Cultivate a Still Tongue.

If women would only bear in mind that they may need the world's good word themselves some day, they would be more careful in what they say, and how they say it. Charity is of thought as well as deed. It is not restricted to the feeding of the hungry, and the clothing of the poor. It is as much needed among any other class. The woman who would be a pattern of her sex will cultivate a still tongue; if she would be a blessing to humanity she will temper justice with mercy, and, above all, she will keep her verdicts to herself when she sits in judgment on her friends.—Ex.

Catarrh of the Stomach.

When the stomach is overloaded; when food is taken into it that fails to digest, it decays and inflames the mucous membrane, exposing the nerves, and causes the glands to secrete mucus, instead of natural juices of digestion. This is called Catarrh of the Stomach. For years I suffered with Catarrh of the Stomach, caused by indigestion. Doctors and medicines failed to benefit me until I used Kodol Dyspepsia Cure.—J. R. Rhea, Coppell, Tex. Sold by Wiley.

Indigestion Causes Catarrh of the Stomach.

For many years it has been supposed that Catarrh of the Stomach caused indigestion and dyspepsia, but the truth is exactly the opposite. Indigestion causes catarrh. Repeated attacks of indigestion inflame the mucous membranes lining the stomach and expose the nerves of the stomach, thus causing the glands to secrete mucus instead of the juices of natural digestion. This is called Catarrh of the Stomach.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure

relieves all inflammation of the mucous membranes lining the stomach, protects the nerves, and cures bad breath, sour risings, a sense of fullness after eating, indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles. Kodol Digests What You Eat. Make the Stomach Sweet. Bottles only. Regular size, $1.00, holding 2 1/2 times the trial size, which sells for 50 cents. Prepared by E. O. DOWITT & CO., Chicago, Ill. For sale by G. R. Wiley, Bethel, Me.

Two severe cases of Ovarian Trouble and two terrible operations avoided. Mrs. Emmons and Mrs. Coleman each tell how they were saved by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I am so pleased with the results obtained from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I feel it a duty, and a privilege to write you about it.

"I suffered for more than five years with ovarian troubles, causing an unpleasant discharge, a great weakness, and at times a faintness would come over me which no amount of medicine, diet, or exercise seemed to correct. Your Vegetable Compound found the weak spot, however, within a few weeks—and saved me from an operation—all my troubles had disappeared, and I found myself once more healthy and well. Words fail to describe the real, true, grateful feeling that is in my heart, and I want to tell every sick and suffering sister. Don't dally with medicines you know nothing about, but take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and take my word for it, you will be a different woman in a short time."—Mrs. LAURA EMMONS, Walkerville, Ont.

Another Case of Ovarian Trouble Cured Without an Operation.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For several years I was troubled with ovarian trouble and a painful and inflamed condition, which kept me in bed part of the time. I did so dread a surgical operation. "I tried different remedies hoping to get better, but nothing seemed to bring relief until a friend who had been cured of ovarian trouble, through the use of your compound, induced me to try it. I took it faithfully for three months, and at the end of that time was glad to find that I was a well woman. Health is nature's best gift to woman, and if you lose it and can have it restored through Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel that all suffering women should know of this."—Mrs. LAURA BELLE COLEMAN, Commercial Hotel, Nashville, Tenn.

It is well to remember such letters as above when some druggist tries to get you to buy something which he says is "just as good." That is impossible, as no other medicine has such a record of cures as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; accept no other and you will be glad.

Don't hesitate to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about your sickness you do not understand. She will treat you with kindness and her advice is free. No woman ever regretted writing her and she has helped thousands. Address Lynn, Mass.

CARE OF HUSBANDS.

How One Woman Finds Their Best Qualities.

A wife, if she be a wise woman, will set herself to find out her husband's best side, and having found it, persuade the man to live up to it.

Set up an ideal before a man, let him think that to you he is that ideal, and the chances are a thousand to one that he will try to live up to it.

If he is mean and selfish make him think he is generous, and you will have cured half his meanness before he knows it. If he is bad tempered and full of crochets, din it into him morning, noon and night that he is good temper itself, and always supposing that the original bad temper does not arise from ill health and physical suffering it will not take very long to sweeten it.

If he is morbidly jealous, don't be a fool and show him that you are afraid to speak civilly to any other man in his presence. He will begin to think he has good grounds for his jealousy then. But let him see that in your eyes at least no man can possibly come up to him in point of physical and mental attractions.

Place him on a pedestal, make a hero of him, and in his own despite he will be forced to live up to the character, and will feel himself, without any words of yours, how absurd his jealousy is. If a man's wife thinks him perfection he need fear no envy of lesser mortals.

If he is one of those fussy, interfering domestic sort of men just try to make him feel that in your eyes he is the quintessence of everything manly, and that such small details are quite beneath his notice. He will soon give up interfering.

If he is prodigal and reckless coax him to save; don't always be taunting him with his extravagance.

Above all, if you are a wise woman, don't try to argue a husband—or, for the matter of that, anybody—out of any of the above, or any other faults. Moreover, let it not be forgotten that matrimonial arguing is but too apt to degenerate into nagging, and a nagging wife never had any real influence over a husband yet.

Be Kind Every Day.

Cultivate kindness of heart, think well of your fellowmen. Look with charity upon the shortcomings in their lives, do a good turn for them as opportunity offers, and finally do not forget the kind word at the right time. How much a word of kindness, encouragement or appreciation means to others sometimes, and how little it costs us to give it!

We need not wait for some special occasion. When calamity overtakes a friend, words of sympathy and encouragement are offered sincerely enough, yet in certain respects as a matter of course. Such an occasion calls for expression on our part, and we naturally respond. But why wait for an occasion? Why not speak the kind word when there is no special occasion?

In the course of our lives there must be many times when thoughtless words are spoken by us which wound the hearts of others. And there are also many little occasions when the word of cheer is needed from us and we are silent.

There are lives of wearisome monotony which a word of kindness can relieve. There is suffering which words of sympathy can make more endurable. And often even in the midst of wealth and luxury, there are those who listen and long in vain for some expression of disinterested kindness.

The diving bell was first used in Europe in the year 1509. It was used on the coast of Mull, in searching for the wreck of a part of the famous Spanish Armada, some time before the year 1669.

Glass bottles were first made in England, about 1553. The art of making glass bottles and drinking glasses was known to the Romans in the year 79, A. D., as they have been found in the ruins of Pompeii.

The Gullottin is so named after Dr. Gullottin, who introduced the instrument into France in the year 1783. It was then substituted at Paris for the more cruel gibbet.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and, unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous services.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Berry Pickers Wanted.

I want 60 girls, boys, and women to pick raspberries. The season commences about July 20 and continues about four or five weeks. If you want to work please apply at once, if you have not already done so. I wish to say to those who would like to come for a day or two when we get behind with our work that if they will send in their names, I will send for them when needed. I am always glad to have additional help Sundays and Fridays and when the weather clears up after a few days of rain. Come at these times whether you are sent for or not and you will be almost sure to find lots of berries to pick as we can't pick Saturdays, and wet weather gives us a serious setback. Prices paid: 2 1/2 cents per quart, 3 cents per quart for Sunday work. Board $2.00 per week. With the small crop last year and bad weather to pick, some of the smartest pickers averaged over $7.00 per week for the whole time they were here. There will be a heavy crop this season.

large delegation of women from the northeast part of the town was present at the meeting for the first time ever known in this town. It was surprising to see what a mighty influence woman holds over man, especially when he comes to the polls to vote. Owing to thirty-five voters in the southwest part of the town who had already got disgusted with the proceedings of the Centennial committee and stayed at home, the northeast part of the town won by a small majority. It is fairly understood that Northeast Albany will hold its Centennial celebration August 12, 1903, at Grover's Corner near Albany town house. Come one, come all, come early and stay late.

"I got temporary relief, but it came back again and again, and for six long years I have suffered more misery and agony than I can tell. It was worse than death. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for physicians' prescriptions and treatment without avail. Finally we moved to Bosque county, our present home, and one day I happened to see an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with a testimonial of a man who had been cured by it. The case was so similar to my own that I concluded to try the remedy. The result was wonderful. I could hardly realize that I was well again, or believe it could be so after having suffered so long, but that one bottle of medicine, costing but a few cents, cured me."

HOUSEKEEPERS

Mrs. S. T. Rohrer, now writing for the Ladies' Home Journal, recommends the use of Earthen Cooking Utensils for the preparation of all dainties, and wherever wholesome food is desired. The following extract has also appeared in the household columns of the Ladies' Home Journal. "The flavor of food baked or boiled in earthenware, is far superior to that of vegetable or animal food cooking in the same way in iron vessels, for the reason that iron is a conductor of heat, while earthenware is a non-conductor. Consequently, food cooked in the latter is rarely, if ever, burned, the degree of heat not varying perceptibly during the process of cooking, thus preserving the flavor of the food as well as uniformity throughout the substance of the meat, vegetables or grain, until the process of cooking is completed." Anyone to be convinced of the

Unsanitary condition of Granite or cheap Enamelled Cooking Utensils, has only to notice the odor coming from the bottom of such vessels

even after they have been scoured, and are supposed to be scrupulously clean. This odor in itself is enough to cause anyone to investigate the desired qualities of a more sanitary utensil. "The poisonous substances in enamel are Arsenic, Antimony and Lead. There is no doubt that many of the unaccountable illness that have come to the people, especially after eating fruits and vegetables, boiled or stewed in these dishes—tomatoes, rhubarb, apples, strawberries, etc., have their origin in the disintegration of the enamel, and in the absorption by the food and the poisons. Even where the enamel is commonly applied with skill and understanding, it may happen that a workman may spill an undue quantity of poison into the mixture, and it takes but little arsenic or lead in the human system to cause the most serious and life long stomach trouble." Our vessels fill a long felt want; are perfectly healthful, acid proof, and once used, will never be done without.

Special Introductory Price $2.00 for Set of 5 Pieces.

2 Quart, 40 cts.

4 Quart, 50 cts.

Roaster, 11 inches, 85 cts.

8 in. Bake Pan, 30c.

9 in. Pie Pan, 15 cts

The special features of our kettles are first and foremost, that it is an ideal Cooking Kettle, suitable for any purpose, and with reasonable use will last longer, and give better satisfaction than any kettle you can purchase; in fact it is the only earthen kettle that contains fire proof qualities that can be called such. It is mechanically perfect, with a special ventilated bottom, which permits the free circulation of air; consequently, it prevents the uneven heating which is the cause of disaster in patterns of cooking ware that have heretofore been offered to the public. It is made exceptionally light, and is really the only sanitary kettle sold. Cooks evenly, never burns. Its lining cannot scale, and in cooking neither can the contents become tainted, or discolored. In the cooking of fruits, especially for canning, it is invaluable, and would be well worth its cost if only used one season. You will find that your fruit will never sour, and if properly sealed, will keep just as well a year afterwards, as the day it was canned. They can also be used in the preparation of food for the sick, and are highly recommended by the foremost Hospitals in the country and abroad. It is not a vessel for special occasions, but is always ready, clean and wholesome, and can be used for any purpose whether for boiling cabbage or the rarest dainties. They are made in two sizes, 2 and 4 quarts.

Our Roaster is a vessel that must not be lost sight of by the economical housekeeper. It appeals to every man and woman, and where once used, will never be done without. In any ordinary roaster, a six pound roast will actually shrink to about four pounds when ready for the table, while if prepared in our roaster, the shrinkage is hardly perceptible. The meat is not dried up on the edges, has all of the juices, and is tender and more delicious than any roast you have ever eaten.

The Pie Pan needs no introduction in the American Household. It is a well known fact that the old stone Pie Pans are the best obtainable. The crust will bake crisp, and without any danger of burning. And again, it is unnecessary to remove the pie from the dish on account of it becoming soggy on the bottom. The pie may remain in one of our pans until used with the assurance that the crust will be as crisp and flaky as the day it came from the oven.

The Bake Pans contain all the advantages mentioned above. Are suitable for baking bread, cake, escalloped oysters, puddings, and any use to which a vessel of this kind can be put, with the assurance at all times, that your food will not be tainted or burned. They have fire proof qualities that are not possessed by any other Cooking Ware, and for ordinary use, a set of ware will last a life time.

THE REWARD OF VIRTUE.

Uncle Bill's Escape from the Fate

That Befell Bad Jake Phelps.

"Y' can always reckon on it, it pays t' be good," said Uncle Bill. "Virtue beats vice in every race, an' in addition t' bein' its own reward it usually pulls in a few of th' outside bets of life along with it."

"Take th' case of poor old Jake Phelps, for example. How's that? Y' never heard tell of what happened t' Jake? Well, then, y' better listen now. It'll be a good lesson fur ye."

"Jake was a bad man clear through. He drank an' cussed an' Lor' knows what he didn't do. He'd steal th' dinner bag of a blind horse if he thought there was oats in it."

"As fur me, on th' other hand, I've always lived a good Christian life an' never done no critter harm, as any one who ever knew me'll tell ye. I knew Jake's old man an' felt sorry ter see th' boy goin' wrong. Why, I've talked t' him with tears in my eyes as big as horse chestnuts tryin' t' get him t' change his ways an' walk th' path of righteousness. Little good it did, though, as you'll see."

"Twus on as likely a spring Sunday as y' ever seed that Jake met his end. We wuz walkin' through th' woods leadin' t' Morton's Drop. Everythin' wuz peaceable. Th' beez wuz hummin' 'round th' wild flowers along t' roadway, an' th' little birds wuz a-titterin' in th' trees, all so joyful-like that it seemed it ought t' soften any man's heart."

"I pleaded with Jake durin' that walk as I'd never pleaded afore. By th' time I'd finished talkin' we'd reached th' end of th' walk an' stood on th' end of th' precipice, a-lookin' at th' calm lake that lies below."

"Suddenly Jake wheeled 'round facin' me. A strange look came into his eyes an' I drew back skeered-like. 'Gol darn you, Bill,' he growled. 'What th' hell right have you got t' be talkin' t' me th' way y' have, y' old varmint, ye. Why, I've half a mind t' heave y' off inter—'

'With that he sprang at me like a wildcat.'

"'Help!!' I hollered, but he grabbed hold of my throat an' shut me off. There we fought like two hyenas, he a-tryin' t' throw me off, an' me a-tryin' not t' let him."

"Back an' forth, back and forth we swayed. But he wuz younger 'n I wuz, an' finally his strength began t' tell. He gave me one final push an' over I went. I made a clutch at him an' he came, too."

"Down, down, down! 'Poor Jake met a just but awful death in th' placid lake below."

"Me? Oh, jest as we struck th' water I woke up an' found 'twas nothin' but a dream with me. But poor Jake, he never woke up. All of which goes t' show th' truth of what I said about virtue in th' first place."

The Point of View.

"Some folks are too mean to live," said Jones, gloomily.

"And some are too mean to die," said a solemn-looking stranger.

It turned out that the stranger was a sexton. You should have seen Jones scowl at him! Jones, it may be mentioned, was in the insurance business, and all his risks were dying off.

Museum Colloquy.

"Yes, when the stranger grew too familiar with the fat lady the manager called his bouncer."

"Big husky fellow, I s'pose?"

"Oh, no; merely the India rubber man."—Kansas City Journal.

Little Willie—Say, pa, what's a coquette?

Pa—A coquette, my son, is a woman who pretends to be indifferent about getting married.

The Exasperated One—I'm afraid, sir, this town isn't big enough to hold both of us!

The Imperturbable—H'm—why don't you start a suburb?

HIS STOLEN CHICKENS.

Bought Back of a Pair of Jersey Darkies.

A farmer in southern Jersey was recently attracted to a sale of chickens which he was going on in front of the post-office of a small town.

"Dey certainly is a rare lot of birds," said the colored man, who, with an assistant, another dusky brother, was offering the chickens separately to the highest bidder. A large basket on the back of an old phaeton held a dozen or more.

Squire Rogers, as the man from the farm was known, edged up close to the talkative darkies and said to a neighbor in the crowd:

"Them birds look powerful like some I've got over on the farm. There are very few like 'em in the county. I'm goin' to buy a bunch of 'em, and then, gol darn it, I challenge anybody to show a better lot of chickens than I've got."

The squire bought ten. He bid them up to fancy prices just to show his friends that what he was "set on havin' he was goin' to get." He tied their legs together, securely, put them into his carriage, and during the long drive home kept congratulating himself on his shrewdness, and picturing Samantha's delight over the splendid addition to the chicken yard.

Upon arriving home he was surprised to see Samantha come rushing down to the gate.

"Oh, John," she cried, "somebody stole twelve of our finest chickens. I heard a noise in the coop just after you left, and then saw a carriage dash away down the road."

John was laughing by this time.

"What do you mean by snickering that way?" demanded the irate wife.

"Gol darn it all," replied the farmer, "the same fellows what took the chickens took me in. I've got all but two of 'em back again. I bought 'em. I recollect now, that there was something familiar lookin' about 'em."

Nell—Would you marry a man just because he happened to be rich?

Bess—Of course not. But, then, I would try awfully hard to get him to marry me.—Comic Cuts.

Barnum's "Wild Man of Borneo." Joaquin Miller the California poet and naturalist was an intimate friend of P. T. Barnum. They met abroad many years ago and kept in touch until the great showman died. Many are the stories which the old poet likes to tell of his friend, "the great American humbug," and one of them is the true story of the greatest "humbug" which Barnum ever perpetrated—"the Wild Man of Borneo."

"It came about through Mr. Barnum's love of temperance and his great kindness of heart," said the poet, in telling the story recently to friends. "An old sailor who had been everywhere and seen everything came to Barnum one afternoon in Bridgeport, Conn., and asked him to buy some things which he had carved from wood on his last voyage across the Pacific. He was ragged, hairy, hungry, and altogether a terrible specimen."

"Where have you been?" asked the showman.

"Been to Borneo," answered the old sailor.

"Well, you look it! Come in and sit down. We are just going to have supper."

"The sailor did come in, and after the meal begged Barnum to look him up in a cage, a cage with iron bars, that he might refrain from drinking. Thus was the 'Wild Man of Borneo' conceived, and every one who attended a Barnum show remembers what an object of interest he was to the small boys."

All of the Same Religion. When the late Charles Godfrey Leland was editing in New York "The Knickerbocker Magazine," he gave a weekly reception that was popular among literary people.

There arose at one of these receptions a noisy argument about religion. To quiet them Mr. Leland cried out in a voice loud enough to be heard above all:

"Intelligent persons are all of the same religion."

A full ensued. Some one said:

"What religion is that?"

"That," answered Mr. Leland, "is what intelligent persons never tell."

No Lie.

"I don't think it is a nice thing to say of Mrs. Odsent that she got her husband at a bargain counter."

"Oh but it's true. He was the young man that saved her life in a crush at a glove sale at Spotcash's one day."—Chicago Tribune.

A Long Honeymoon Trip. Maude—Papa has offered to pay all the expenses of our honeymoon trip. Claude—Then we'll never come back.

"Mrs. Jones seems to be heartbroken over her husband's death."

"Yes, even her hair has turned black again."—Brooklyn Life.

TIRED OUT?

"L. F." Relieves and Strengthens Stomach, Bowels, Liver and Kidneys. The More "L. F." the Less Sickness.

"I have received such great benefit from the 'L. F.' Atwood's Bitters that I want to tell about it. I am positive that if people would take more of the True 'L. F.' for general debility and building up of the system there would be less sickness and fewer doctor's bills. You may use this statement if you see fit."

—James H. Burbank, Clerk and Treasurer, Chesterville, Me.

The True "L. F." is a Spring System Cleanser and Tonic.

Baby Lacked Style.

Aunt Edith—And what do you think of your little baby sister?

Little Elsie—Oh, I'm dreadfully disappointed in her.

Aunt Edith—Disappointed?

Little Elsie—Yes; why she doesn't look a bit more stylish than the baby our washerwoman got last Spring.

At the Oculist's.

"Can I see Dr. Spinks, the oculist?"

"I'm sure I don't know. If you can, you have no need of his services, and he won't care to see you; if you can't, why, step right in."—Chicago News.

Forgetful.

Laura—This time last year you were engaged to that little homely professor.

Bertha—Sure enough; what was his name?—Detroit Free Press.

Constancy.

Tom Jynn—Can't you give me just one more chance. I've stopped drinking for good this time.

Real Thing.

"What game have you to-day?" asked the half-starved Eastern man, as he registered at an Arizona hotel.

"Seven-up and poker, sir," replied the proprietor, as he extended the glad hand.—Chicago News.

Mr. Beazle—After we've done read a lot of these epigrams in this here graveyard I've 'bout made up my mind the great people of all kinds must be dead.

Mr. Feazle (reflectively, after reading a few more)—Yes, mebbe. All but the greatest liars.

When one drops into poetry he should be careful and not misplace his feet.

Mabel Syruppe—Stopped drinking?

Nonsense! You couldn't stick to anything if you tried.

Tom Jynn—Why, Mabel! How can you say such a thing? Think of the way I've stuck to drinking.
